5.	Project Update Update on Makers Space Feasibility Study A presentation was given on the conclusion of the Makers Space feasibility study by Oliver Goodhall (OG) who is the director/ partner from 'We Made That' consultants appointed to deliver the feasibility study.

OG gave a high level overview including recommendations and next steps.

‘We Made That’ have:

- Explored the case for a creative Makers Space through looking at the demand, reviewing spaces and what impact this would have on the creative sector and surrounding area.
- Explored evidence-based research, insight gathering and engagement with the sector. This informed the vision for Chesterfield.
- Reviewed operational and spatial needs and developed a model for appraising potential sites.
- Reviewed the impact that a Creative Makers Space could bring to the town in terms of added value.
- Created a technical brief and operational brief.
- Gave recommendations that they believe there is a clear demand in Chesterfield that would create wider positive impacts.
- The former Derbyshire Times building has been identified as the most suitable current space within the town to fulfil the vision.
- Actions have been identified for the next steps and conditions for success should the Chesterfield Town Board wish to progress with this project. This also included seeking funding from other sources such as the Arts Council and the East Midlands Mayoral Combined Authority.

It was noted that at the same time the feasibility study was taking place Junction Arts, and a number of creative businesses were required to relocate from their existing premises at West Studio. During this time CBC is in the process of completing the purchase of the Derbyshire Times building. CBC have been working with Junction Arts and have now offered a short-term lease on the property. This was highlighted to the Board as it poses a unique opportunity to test the recommendations of the feasibility study on an interim basis.

It was also confirmed that the feasibility study was conducted as a stand alone study and that the move by Junction Arts and other creatives into the Derbyshire Times building happened in tandem rather than by design.

The Board asked for further clarity on the process on concluding the Derbyshire Times Building as the preferred location within the feasibility study. OG gave detail on the sifting process that they had been through to enable them to come to this conclusion.

Questions were raised around the rationale for funding from Pride in Place particularly as the organisations within the sector are now already accommodated. Information was given on the current state of the building and how it wasn't DDA compliant or currently fit for purpose as it doesn't have the facilities needed to support creatives from all sub sectors, including the digital industry. It lacks the necessary technology and spatial adaptations required to function as an environment where creatives could grow and thrive. Whilst Junction Arts and some creative businesses have moved in and are using the space, it is not representative of the type of space it could evolve to be.

OG described the benefits of growing the creative sector in Chesterfield. Board members highlighted the film industry, tech industry and music industry and how there was a shortage in a supply network and how the Makers Space given the fit for purpose space would encourage existing and younger generations of creatives to develop. Future opportunities were also highlighted as the College were expanding their T Levels to include film and music and the proximity to the Derbyshire Times building was seen as an advantage.

It was also noted that there would be further reports brought to the Town Board setting out the recommendations on how to progress the projects..

Community Hub Feasibility Update

A presentation was given to the Board to update them on the interim position of the Community Hub feasibility study. PC and LM from KADA, the consultants appointed to deliver the feasibility study, gave a presentation on progress to date.

KADA have:

- Reviewed best practice looking at provisions across the country that also includes a health provision.
- Highlighted early themes that are emerging including that there is an appetite for the co-location of services.
- Reviewing wider government funding pathways and highlighting that short term funding takes away from operational capacity.
- Looking at the benefits of creating a vibrant offer would have on an area.
- Contacted key stakeholders and have started a process of engagement.

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Highlighted the next steps that include public consultations and the Board were asked to support by helping KADA to reach forums through the Boards wider networking groups. Comments were raised that the study felt broad in scope, but Board members who had direct experience of working in the VCSE sector highlighted from their experience that there was a great need for services to support the general public in Chesterfield. It was also highlighted that opportunities to expand services such as social prescribing and diagnostics were emerging but the lack of space to expand was currently an issue of which potentially leads to opportunities. Clarity was given on how government are wanting us to test projects through feasibility and engagement with stakeholders and through KADA conducting stakeholder and further public engagement it will help inform what demand there is for a Community Hub and what services it would need to deliver based on evidence. It was also noted that KADA would be invited back to the future Town Board meetings to present the concluded study. Actions: If the Board have any points to raise to share any concerns with RB via email Project Updates report DS advised that the project update paper had been shared with the Board papers to provide an overview of the progress of all projects. This paper was noted.	ALL
